

4.2 Common pests, diseases and disorders of plants

This section covers the main pests, diseases and other disorders that are likely to affect living walls. Because living walls are normally situated in the public realm, the methods of treating pests and diseases differ from those used commonly in gardens. Instead of using systemic pesticides or fungicides, biological solutions need to be administered through the irrigation system of the living wall.

NEXT